Zena, Dec. 28.—Zena's holiday festivities began last Monday evening with the presentation of a pageant, "The first Christmas", by the Christian Endeavor and the young people of the Reformed Church. ## Christmas Party Of Presbyterians

The annual Christmas tree party of the Sunday school of the Rondout Presbyterian Church was held Monday evening in the chapel and was largely attended. An interesting program was presented by members of the various classes of the school, and Santa Claus paid his annual visit and distributed gifts to the children.

Superintendent Fred L. Van Deusen presided at the party and introduced the various numbers on the program, which opened with the singing of Christmas carols with Mrs. Harry G. Smith at the piano.

The story of the first Christmas was given by James McClenahan and Harold Wells, which was followed by a recitation by Emily Banks and Alice Wells. Jessie Whipple and Beatrice Joy sang a Christmas number and Harold Wells and George Conorman recited Christmas Bells.

Anna A. Van Deusen delightfully played two piano solos, while Marion Leonard rendered the solo, "Why Fairies Come Down."

Miss Mary O'Connor gave a Christmas reading that was greatly enjoyed.

Billy Wrigg, guest star on the program, recited "Just Before Christmas" in his usual delightful manner. Norma Manos recited "A Riddle to Guess" and several other members of the primary department recited and sang.

Every year at the party Mr. Van Deusen, the superintendent, delights the children and their friends with a number of magical illusions, and he offered several new and entertaining acts.

The program closed with "A Street Scene of Long Ago" given by Miss Mary Staples and the young girls of her class.

At the close of the program Santa Claus made his annual visit and distributed gifts to every child present. The refreshment committee then distributed boxes of candy, ice cream and apples, and the party was brought to a successful close.

Men's clothes grow confusing. Not content with changing the dress suit rules to admit blue and white as substitutes for black, the tailors are mixing up the styles for daytime wear. Thus Chicago merchant tailors announce that it is all right to wear a coat and vest of one color or pattern with trousers of a different color or pattern. The obvious merit of this liberty is that by buying two suits a man may have four. Thus with a blue suit and a checked suit, he may wear either complete by itself, or the blue coat and vest with checked trousers, or the checked coat and vest with blue trousers.

IT IS BETTER THAT I DIE

Highland News

Village News Briefs

Highland, Dec. 28.—The home-stead of the late Philip Eltinge on the road between Highland and New Paltz, and now occupied by his nephew, Henry D. Eltinge, was badly burned at an early hour Christmas morning. Mrs. Eltinge, it is said, smelled smoke all of Thursday and both she and Mr. Eltinge retired at a very late hour, because of their uneasiness. Mr. Eltinge arose early Friday morning and about 7 o'clock the fire broke out. Neighbors responded and with help the residence was not totally destroyed.

Miss Eliza Raymond returned Sunday afternoon from spending the holiday at the home of her nephew, Raymond Haight, in Round Lake.

Sidney Mackey, of Bogota, N. J., drove up Sunday to the home of his mother, Mrs. Harriet Mackey, and brother, G. H. Mackey.

The meeting of the U. D. Society will be held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Lewis Vail. At this time the officers elected early in December will take office for the coming year.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leonard were here Christmas Day from East Orange, N. J., for the holiday, with Mrs. Leonard's mother, Mrs. Helen D. Brown.

Earliest Ohio Railroad

"Mere Fanciful Object"

The first steam railroad constructed in Ohio was also "the pioneer railroad of the west," the Erie & Kalamazoo. It was projected by Dr. Samuel O. Comstock of Toledo, and was chartered by the state of Michigan "on the ground that it was a mere fanciful object, of which no harm could come, and it would greatly please the Comstocks of Toledo," relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In 1835 the line was built and opened between Toledo and Adrian. The original plan had been to lay oak rails and employ horses as the motive power. But before the line was completed steam power was decided upon, and iron "straps" were fastened to the wooden rails. The first locomotive, Adrian No. 1, was set upon the tracks in June, 1837, and in the same year the road obtained a contract for carrying the mails.

Several railway charters had been granted in Ohio, meanwhile, but none of these bore fruit until 1839, when the Mad River & Lake Erie was built from Sandusky to Bellevue, sixteen miles. This road had been chartered in 1832 to construct a line as far as Dayton. It reached there in 1844.

Milan Calls Cathedral Eighth Wonder of World

The people of its city which has been there since 400 B. C., call it the eighth wonder of the world, and they lack interest in the other seven. It is a cathedral of duomo which accommodates over 40,000 persons. It covers an area of 14,000 square yards, and its tower is 360 feet from the street below.

It is constructed of white marble, and on the roof there are over 100 turrets, while on the outside walls are carved in white marble over 2,000 statues. Its stained glass windows are the largest in the world.

The builders began it in the Fourteenth century, notes a writer in the Boston Globe but it was not finished until 1813, over 300 years in building its stupendous beauty.

The floor is mosaic marble of different colors, and owing to the centuries it took to finish, various styles of architecture are in it.

The city has over 1,000,000 inhabitants and is noted for one of the most famous, if not the greatest opera house in the world.

Taine said, "This is the true Christian temple. If I were a pagan asked to surrender my worship in an ancient forest and accept a religion to chant hosanna beneath a vaulted roof of stone, I would choose this duomo and this only—there is no other."

Milan Cathedral is unique.

Girl Kidnaped Long Ago by Indians Wed to Chief

There was kidnapping as far back as 1778. It was November 2, in that year, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record, that five-year-old Frances Stocum was kidnaped by Delaware Indians from her home in the Wyoming valley.

Not for 57 years did her family find her in an Indian camp near what is now Reserve, Ind. The story they learned was amazing.

She had grown up as an Indian, adopted Indian thought, customs and beliefs, learned their traditions, married a chief of the Miami tribe and had borne four children. She had forgotten her native tongue, remembering only the name Stocum.

Even her character was molded by the association, and she greeted her long lost brothers and sisters with stoical indifference.

She recalled her childhood days on the banks of the Susquehanna, her family, the details of the abduction. But nothing could make her go back to live with white people. She had been treated kindly, she said. An Indian she had become, an Indian she would remain. And she did.

Tram, Street Railway

Encyclopedia Britannica defines tramway as a "track or line of rails laid down in the public roads or streets along which wheeled vehicles are run." Tram is the British equivalent of street railway and the old country term is used in some American cities, notably Denver. According to the reference work, the name tramway appears to be of Scandinavian origin and primarily to mean a beam of wood. In lowland Scottish "tram" was used both to mean a beam of wood and specifically such a beam employed as the shaft of a cart. The name is often given in England to the wheeled vehicles used for carrying coal in mining. In 1555 a will referred to a log road as a "tram."

Muskrat, Cousin of Mouse

The muskrat is about a foot long and a cousin of the mouse. The tail is flattened in an up-and-down direction and serves as a rudder in water. It builds a dome-shaped house of grass in marshes, but bores a hole in the banks of lakes and rivers, the entrance to which is always below water. To the Indians of British Columbia, the muskrat is a god, observes a writer in the Washington Post. They say that, in the beginning, nothing existed but water and a muskrat. The muskrat sought his food at the bottom and his mouth was frequently filled with mud. This he kept spitting up, and so formed an island, which developed into the world.

Beautiful Montevideo

Montevideo is one of the great cities of South America and has a population of two-thirds of a million. In few cities has national and civic initiative been conceived and applied with greater intelligence and ability. It is one of the most beautiful capitals in the western hemisphere. The city is famous for its extensive parks with walks of inland mosaic. The Prado is the oldest and the most beautiful. A veritable garden of roses, it has picturesque glades, gardens and lakes. In one space may be seen a variety of trees, the greatest collection in the world.

England's White Walls

For centuries Dover castle, a gray walls high perched on white chalk cliffs, has been the first object to catch the eye—and the imagination. "The white walls of England" the cliffs have been called the castle in the shape of Hubert de Burgh, its most notable constable, was "the very key and gate of England." The British preceded the Romans on that hill. Romans gave place to Saxons, and the Norman Conqueror built on the foundations of all three.

Don't miss the chance to see the white cliffs of Dover in the new ending of the story of the white cliffs of Dover. It is the story of the white cliffs of Dover. It is the story of the white cliffs of Dover. It is the story of the white cliffs of Dover.

Wm. Penn Also Known as First Conservationist

William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, was also known as the country's first conservationist.

In a letter, written in 1672 to Penn's proprietary governor, contained strict instructions against destruction and felling of trees. Penn even went so far as to instruct his commissioner to "inform upon those and indict them for same to the utmost rigour."

"That you take special care that where the timber of mine is not cut down it be carefully preserved. Hearing that a windmill is to be set up in the town of Philadelphia, which is my royalty, and thereby consuming a great quantity of wood . . . I hereby order you to prevent erection of said mill until further orders . . ."

Another example of Penn's careful conservation of wood appeared in his original Charter of Rights, issued in 1681, which reads: "in clearing the ground, care should be taken to leave one acre of trees for every five acres cleared, especially preserve the oaks and mulberries for shipping."

And as a result of an early beginning, Pennsylvania has conserved a large portion of the state in wooded land and forests.

Two Arrested for Disorderly Conduct

Charles Bassett 24, of Lonsdale, who was arrested on Saturday on a charge of disorderly conduct in shouting and creating a disturbance on Cornell street, was arraigned before Judge Callahan in police court this morning and fined $10.

Monday evening the police department received a call from the Plaza Restaurant on John street that a man was trying to clean out the restaurant. Officers Camp and Elliott in one of the radio cars responded and placed James Murphy 40, of Albany, under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. This morning Murphy on his plea of guilty was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Joseph Coumbes, who recently escaped from the New York State Training School at Warwick, was picked up late Monday afternoon by Officer Reine and held for the state school authorities.

to read into that performance a fling at the high prelates of the established church in England, who since Edward's abdication have continued criticizing him. No doubt Edward has been bitterly hurt by what he considers unfair and unparliamentary attacks. Yet in the printed accounts of the little ceremony in Vienna there was nothing to suggest any such purpose. He had probably been invited into the pulpit as a distinguished layman, and he read the great words timidly, with evident emotion. A world which was greatly moved by his farewell radio address from London would have liked to hear that reading.

As for his clerical critics, they probably do more harm than good by their continued assaults. The former king is obviously no saint, but it is unnecessary to continue denouncing him as a great sinner. He seems a very human person, weak in spots but with qualities of real bigness.

OPIUM EXECUTIONS

The Chinese government has taken a grim step to wipe out the use of narcotics. Beginning January 1 uncurd addicts are to be executed. The order was issued some time ago, to encourage victims to take the free treatments offered and to deter others from indulgence. The government says "there will not be any addicts after the executions are finished," which suggests a determination to be thorough.

China has been trying for many years to end the opium evil, and has had to resist selfish commercial interests, particularly that of the British who formerly forced a large part of the Indian opium output on China. That traffic was stopped by a formal agreement between the two governments. China itself cut down the growing of opium. But the bad results of the days of unrestricted production and importation have been hard to eliminate. The executions seem to us too drastic and cruel, but the nation's desire to be free from a great enslavement is admirable.

BLOOD PRESSURE

A candidate for insurance returned home after the medical examination and informed his family that his blood pressure was so high that the doctor refused to accept him for insurance, but told him to return in a few days.

On the second examination it was found that the blood pressure was still high. A further delay was suggested.

In the meantime, the examining physician knowing that the candidate had a friend who was a medical examiner for another insurance company, sought out this physician and suggested that he call at the candidate's house some Sunday morning (just happened to be passing and dropped in for a minute) with, of course, his bag in his hand. The candidate would likely suggest that he take his blood pressure, or he might casually introduce the subject himself.

As expected, the candidate suggested that his friend, the physician, take his blood pressure. The blood pressure was normal, and when the physician announced this fact the candidate, greatly pleased, said, "I got examined for insurance recently and the doctor told me my blood pressure was too high. I went the second time and it was still high. I thought he was wrong because there is nothing wrong with me or my blood pressure."

The physician reported his findings to the company physician and, sure enough, when again examined by the company doctor the pressure was found to be normal.

Now the reason for this high blood pressure at the first examination was the excitement or anxiety about getting examined. Thus, while exercise will raise the blood pressure a number of points, as will also food, alcoholic drinks and certain drugs, the emotions of an individual can raise the pressure higher than any of these.

The arterial tension or height of blood pressure is so easily moved or affected by so many variables, such as emotional stresses, the surrounding temperature, digestion and mental activity, that one must be very cautious in estimating the importance of moderate changes in its size or fall.

Wings For Sally

By BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, dark, handsome young publisher of the Warrenton Courier, loves thoughtfully Sally Warren, the society editor. They are fighting to save McDonald, a discharged mill worker, who is on trial for burning the Palace theater. By eavesdropping on Giles Benton, an unscrupulous detective, and his employer, old Mr. Morris, who owns the theater and mutt, Sally hears Benton say he has framed McDonald. She confronts Benton with the information, and he kidnaps her. Philip learns of Sally's disappearance, suspects Benton and starts the search.

Chapter 43

The Butler Gives A Clue

PHILIP left Mr. Warren at home, and went to the office. Sally had not been there since lunch, the rest of the office force assured him. The telephone rang and Philip answered it himself. It was Mr. Warren, saying that Sally was not at her aunt's house in the city.

"We must notify the police," said Mr. Warren, in a voice that struggled to be calm.

"I'll drop by and talk to the chief," said Philip. "Then I'm going out to look for Sally myself. Don't worry—I'll find her."

"Darling Philip," cried Mary, "come and sit beside me."

Mary Morris had begged him to come back and stay with her, and although a visit to the Morris house was distasteful to Philip, because Mr. Morris had ordered him from the place in anger, Philip felt bound to see Mary before he went away for an indefinite length of time.

Mary, in a clinging negligee, was lying on the chaise longue in her own room. Dennison had brought Philip word at the door that Mary wanted him to come straight up. Now he hesitated on the threshold of her room, but she held out her hand to him.

"Darling Philip!" she cried. "Come and sit beside me. My head aches and my heart's beating like a trip-hammer. I was so frightened when I came home and found the doctor standing over father, and father looking so strange. If you hadn't come over when I called, I'd have died of fright and nervousness."

"Your father wouldn't want me here," said Philip. "I shan't stay long. Sally Warren is missing and I've got to search for her."

"Sally? Why, what could happen to Sally? She was here only tonight, to see father."

"What time?" demanded Philip eagerly.

"Shortly after eight, I think. I really don't know, except that Giles Benton and a friend of father's, a woman, had an engagement to see father at 8:30. Sally left as they came in."

"So Giles Benton was the last person to see father, before he had the stroke?" speculated Philip. He got up. "I must go and speak to Dennison, then I'll leave. I won't be back, but I'll call and see how your father is."

"And how I am!" Mary's lips were pointing like a child's.

"Yes," Philip smiled a little grimly. An hour ago Mary had been in hysterics and he had been looking for Sally because Mary wanted her. Now Mary had forgotten Sally. She seemed uninterested in Sally's disappearance. Philip excused Mary on the score of her father's illness.

Philip Heads For Hillcrest

HE found Dennison in the hall downstairs.

"Are you sure Miss Warren didn't go out with Mr. Benton tonight?" Philip asked sharply.

"Homespun yarn."

Cooking habits should be analyzed occasionally if the housemaker wishes to control the size of her food bills.

White bread is said to have been first used in church services, and was later sold to the nobility for their tables.

Hillcrest highway, his thoughts wrestled with the problem of why Sally had been spirited away.

Sardines And Cheese

AS Sally waited in the not little bedroom of the hunting lodge for Sam to fetch her something to eat, she turned over in her mind schemes for getting tangible evidence against those who had imprisoned her. She was not concerned for herself. She did not believe they would dare to harm her in any way. They simply meant to get the blackmail money from Mr. Morris and escape, leaving her to get back to her friends as best she could.

Outside the window Sam halted her.

"Hello, you up there?"

"Here!" called Sally. She peered out at the moonlit stretch of grass between the lodge and the woods. Sam was standing there with a small basket and a piece of cord in his hand.

"I've tied a rock to this end of the cord," he called up to her. "I'll throw it up to you. The basket's on the other end and you can pull it up. Look out for the rock."

He threw the stone with an expert hand. Sally drew back and landed on the floor beside her.

"I've got it," she called. She began to pull the cord and finally drew the basket up to the window sill. She looked it over to the light. There were two cans of sardines, a box of crackers, a piece of old cheese, two apples and a bottle of warm ginger ale. A can opener had been thoughtfully included. Sally was much too healthy and hungry to scorn the fare provided.

While she ate, washing down the food with the warm ginger ale, Sally planned what she should do next. The food had served to restore her confidence and reassure her as to Sam's good nature.

If she could only get Sam to talk to her, she might persuade him that it was to his best interests to come back to town with her and testify against his accomplices. She could promise to help him get out of his part in the crime against McDonald. But she couldn't talk to Sam from the second story window, shouting every word she had to say.

Philip rescues Sally from her petticoat room.

OUR WISH TO ALL-A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

The Moss Feature Syndicate, Greensboro, N. C.

Greetings.

A new page, a new year.
Let's keep the record clear
A fresh start, a new fight.
A New Year—Live it right!

The following interesting item was taken from a recent issue of the Brushville Bugle, edited by Clay Mudd.

"The poverty social was a real social event Friday night. Some of the costumes created much merriment. Miss Mitz Mittleer walked off with first prize with the most original costume, which consisted of a pair of leather hip boots formerly worn by her grandfather."

Sunshine!
Dip your pen in sunshine, black clouds will roll away;
Live well in the present, gone is yesterday.
Dip your pen in sunshine, did depression go.
With gratitude and kindness let your good words flow.
—Grenville Kleiser.

On the business train the successful man always rides in the cab with his hand on the throttle; the failures will be found on the back platform with their feet on the rail.

A hobo knocked at the door of a home recently and asked for a bite to eat. The lady of the house said: "Lady—You don't look like a man who should starve for the lack of work. Why don't you get a job?"
Hobo—I would, lady, but everybody wants a letter of reference from the last man I worked for.
Lady—Well, why not get it?
Hobo (backing away)—Because, madam, he has been dead for 20 years.

The more some people tell you the less you know.

Relief Agent—They tell me you have a model husband?
Woman—Yes, but he ain't a working model. He's just a blue print.

An Independent Couple.
Jack Spratt will eat no fat.
His wife will eat no lean;
Jack Spratt will take no job.
His wife for bridge is keen.
They're both quite independent.
And both from care are free.
For Mr. Spratt and Mrs. Spratt
Are on relief, you see!

People with red hair do not have any worse tempers than those with black, brown, white, or no hair at all. And red doesn't mean any more to a bull than any other color.

Read It or Not: Tomato juice is a cure for a hang-over is a fallacy.

Harold—Mother, we're going to play elephants at the zoo and we want you to come.
Mother—What on earth can I do?
Harold—You can be the lady who gives them peanuts and candy.

Such Faith.
Such faith as you have shown in me in words can't be expressed.
I don't deserve it—but it makes me want to do my best.
There's nothing half so precious in my life as your rare trust—
And I shall prove it's not misplaced, in all things I'll be just.
If I'm tempted to do wrong, your trusting face I'll see
And I'll select the path that's right, to guard your faith in me.

Ten Stories Of 1936 That Didn't Shake The World

By The AP Feature Service

Historians, impressed with the passing twelvemonth's succession of world-shaking events, may record 1936 as a grave and solemn period. This would be unfair to 1936.

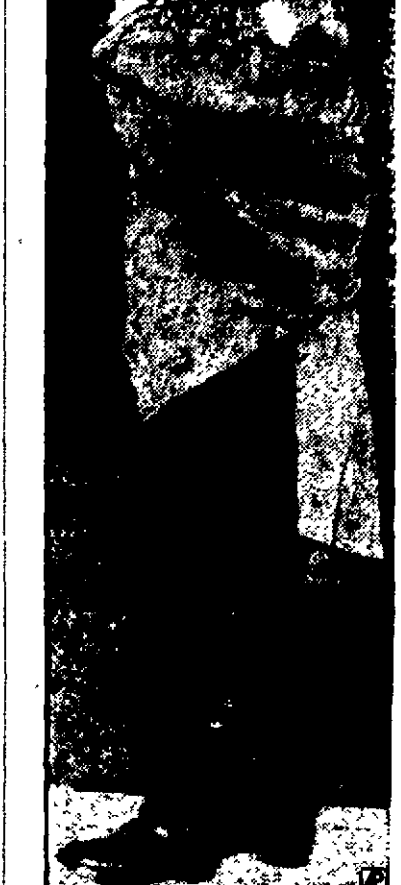

The year deserves credit for dishing up more than its share of laughs.

Just to make the record complete, the AP Feature Service nominates its own "ten best stories"—stories that made swell reading for goodness.

Certainly posterity should pay special attention to a year which saw a man in white duck pants marching in a king's funeral procession, a man jumping on a banquet table and tossing feathers in people's dessert.

Definitely historians should remember a year when a Budapest insurance salesman challenged nine men to duels for the honor of his wife, when a dozen women claimed a $500,000 prize in a baby-bearing race.

If a vaudeville gag man had thought up these stories, they would have been hilarious but insignificant. Maybe destiny is a gag man.

SARGA SARGA

When Dr. Franz Sarga eloped with Magda Marko in Budapest, some folks said he married her for money. Insulted, Dr. Sarga, scheduled nine duels, fought three, winged one opponent with a pistol.

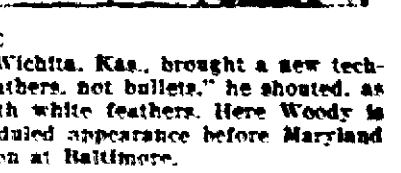

A PROUD PAPA?

The content for $500,000 left by Charles Millar to the Toronto women having the most babies in 10 years went to court. Spectators guessed this shrouded figure at the hearing probably was a stork derby father.

HE DIDN'T WIN A NOBEL PRIZE

Nevertheless Woody Hockaday of Wichita, Kas., brought a new technique to the peace movement. "Feathers, not bullets," he shouted. As he showered public dignitaries with white feathers. Here Woody is shown at the height of an unscheduled appearance before Maryland American Legionnaires in convention at Baltimore.

ON WISCONSIN

There was quite a stir in Racine, Wis., when people saw in the phone book the name JIMMY M. COFFY GOODY. Mr. Coffey told reporters that "Jimmy" was his name and he had a right to be in the phone book.

ME AND GEORGE WASHINGTON

Walter Johnson, old-time baseball pitcher, tested the plausibility of the legend that George Washington threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock river. On his third try, Johnson recalled Washington.

THEY WANTED TOMORROW'S PIE TODAY

Young America in 1936 demonstrated its foresight by organizing a Veterans of Future Wars (with an Auxiliary for girls) to demand bonuses in advance for fighting in the next war. Here college boys and girls at Springfield, Mo., pose in tableau for the cause with a cabbage for a grenade, a paper banner and low-powered wooden rifle.

THE MAN IN WHITE DUCK PANTS

Among gold-spangled dignitaries marching in King George V's funeral procession news pictures afterward showed one little fellow in white duck trousers and plain felt hat. The story got around that he was a masseur who some way had got mixed up in the procession and just kept marching because he saw no graceful way to duck out.

AS THOUSANDS YAWNED

For persons ill at ease in public because they don't know what to do with their hands, 1936 provided a remedy. It was called "handies," and everybody—well, almost everybody—played it. Guess what this one is?

MR. WICKERY (Without Hat)

Albert W. Wickery, retired St. Louis expressman who had spent his life dispatching things to places he never saw, got quite a vicarious kick out of it when friends sent him a hat clear around the world.

SHOKAN

Cuba's Strong Man

This is a new photo of Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the Cuban army and strong man behind the government. It was his fight on President Miguel M. Gomez which led to the chief executive's ouster and his replacement by President Laredo Bru. (Associated Press Photo)

Shokan, Dec. 29.—Mrs. Louisa Theil, of Arlington, N. J., is visiting her father, Louis Theil, and grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Theil.

Douglas and John Hartvig, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hartvig of New York, are sojourning at the family summer home on the north boulevard.

George VonderOsten of the old estate road is spending a few days at Naspeth, L. I.

Quarterly communion services will be conducted in the Shokan Reformed Church next Sunday morning by the Rev. August Pfau, pastor of the church.

The Rev. Thomas Braithwaite, ill for the past several weeks at his home on the hill road to Boiceville, is reported as improved and is now able to sit up a part of the time.

Aartsen VanWagenen of Kingston is spending a few days at the Longyear House.

The local brooks, after a brief season of high water, have run down again, leaving the water in the Ashokan Reservoir at a slightly higher elevation than was the case earlier in the month. The frost is well out of the ground and very little snow remains on the ground along the mountainside.

Robert B. Peck, Jr., of New York, is spending a vacation at the Peck country home near Tice TenEyck Mountain. Christmas greeting cards, sent by members of the Peck family to local friends, depict a woodland scene among white birches as sketched by Mrs. Peck.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dean of Woodstock were Christmas Day guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Elmendorf. The Deans formerly resided in Ashokan.

The Reformed Sunday School Christmas exercises in the church Thursday evening were much enjoyed by those in attendance. Songs and recitations, also talks by Supt. Daniel Sampson and the Rev. Mr. Pfau, were included in the interesting program. Organ music was furnished by Miss Hazel Bell and Mrs. E. C. Burgher, and as an added musical feature there were two violin solo numbers by Dr. Hans J. Cohn. There was the usual Christmas tree and distribution of gifts by Santa Claus. The auditorium of the church was decorated with evergreens for the occasion.

Mrs. Jane Stubley of The Cairn, is spending the winter months with one of her daughters, Mrs. G. C. Syme, in Plushing, L. I. Mrs. Syme is the mother of Robert Brown, a student at Cooper Union, who makes his home here in the summer.

Dec. 28, 1937—the marriage took place of John DuBois of Olive to Sarah E. Everett of West Hurley, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. O. P. Crandall, pastor of the West Hurley M. E. Church. The couple, for many years, made their home in the house earlier known as the Shokan M. E. Church parsonage. Mr. DuBois was a soldier in the Union Army. Mrs. Ella Secor is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DuBois.

Miss Verna Giles of Poughkeepsie is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giles of Church Hill.

Monroe Truesdale of Saugerties was included among the callers in the hub of the reservoir country last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Nadal of Poughkeepsie motored here and spent the week-end at Casa di Nadal in the heights sector.

Mrs. Oscar Ganter and son, Emmett, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Ganter's daughter, Mrs. Arthur Vanderbent, in Rye.

Elmer Bedell returned to Shokan Saturday from Albany and Rensselaer. Mr. Bedell expects to have employment with his truck on one of the local road jobs.

Peter Tompkins, a freshman at Harvard University, is spending the holidays with his father, Lawrence Tompkins, at the Norval Fortson farmhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sampson and the Rev. August Pfau and wife and daughter spent Christmas Day in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Henry Winchell, well-known south Olive poultrywoman was a caller in the village center Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Myers have gone to Florida in their car and trailer. At last reports, Mr. and Mrs. Myers had reached Jacksonville on their way to Miami.

James Rutherford and Ray Cuddey, enterprising Tionchos neighborhood farmers, are getting out chestnut bread with their teams.

Donald and Dumas Lynch, young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Denis T. Lynch, of New York, are at the family country home for the holidays.

Shokan residents were interested in The Freeman's account of the purchase of a new store property by Merritt Every and the latter's success in the motor sales business. Mr. Every was born and brought up here, his old home having been the present Gabriel Richard place.

NO MISSTATEMENT, SAYS SHOKAN CORRESPONDENT

Shokan, N. Y., Dec. 26, 1936

Editor, The Freeman:

Appropos of a broadside in Thursday evening's Freeman from the pen, or from that of the signer's ghost writer, allow me to suggest that the Olive superintendent of highway's distributive was poorly timed for the Christmas season, to say the least. It would seem that only the goodness of an irked complex or a deliberately fractured system could override the spirit of brotherly peace that is traditionally in force at this happy period.

The letter, in which this correspondent is accused of being actuated by ulterior motives, of making half-baked misstatements, etc., would make a good humorous article, were it not so palpably misleading in intent, so childish in conception and so utterly lacking in logic. That "half-baked misstatements" sounds ominously like a bombastic and rather cauliflowered synonym for the great Teddy's "short and ugly word", however, and therefore serves to obviously lift the broadside out of the juvenile essays class.

Briefly, there has been no misstatement about the mountain road cut-off project, or any other highway matter, in the Shokan news column. If this asseveration is incorrect, the writer welcomes enlightenment. So, why the fuss? Can it be possible that the animadversions were prompted by a casual observation or two on the miserable condition of the roadway at that point during the present year? Perish the thought! Or by the common knowledge that the $300 cut-off as a highway is a dandy toboggan slide? Let us prefer not to think so. The animus lies too deep for the ordinary mind to grasp.

Why, Mister Supt., we hasten to assure you that that hill is a veritable pup of an engineering job. To be sure it does not curve pleasingly through majestic hemlock woods along the brink of one of our mountain gorges, down which rushes a babbling brook, as did the old route, still with its borders of old stumps ousted rocks and whatnot; the scene does typify modern progress while the sensation superinduced by shooting the chutes down a 45 degree (or thereabouts) grade, packs all manner of thrills for the motorist. Far superior, in every way, shape and manner, than the abandoned stretch which with a modicum of labor and money, might easily have been made quite safe for travel. Yes, indeed!

Again: the expense item "Hardly a considerable sum."—Well, of course not, in New Deal parlance at any rate. A mere taxpayer would not know about that. Also, the improvement (?) was petitioned for by residents of the mountain section. All this is well known here and no one would begrudge those worthy residents a bit of a lift in their climbings. But whereas these same folks previously were mere climbers, now, forsooth, they are certified Alpinists, and should, by all the rules of safety, do their travelling in file and with stout ropes linking up their respective cars. Yes the cut-off unquestionably is an engineering triumph, and as such will undoubtedly call forth paeans (or pains), long after the good superintendent and this misguided correspondent are forgotten. Let us therefore be thankful that we have this rather precipitous approach to a beautiful neighborhood, while at the same time rejoicing that the old route remains passable, for we confess to a suspicion that more than one hauler of heavy loads quietly directs his team, or truck, along the old road of a century ago.

Finally, let those who hasten to take umbrage at a bit of constructive criticism (through more gifted pens), keep in mind the fact that there are still roads where rocks have been jutting up in the pavement for years despite those annual passages with the scraper to cover them up; that there are roads where it is still unsafe, and even impossible, to pass with care, and that there is a district in a certain town where spring roadwork is not begun until the humble and tax-harassed farmer begins to call loudly for help in the bayside. Remembering this, we shall perhaps have less time for doubtful Christmas greetings and funny jumps at false conclusions.

I thank you.

Chimney Fire

New Paltz, Dec. 29.—About 7 o'clock on Christmas morning the fire company was called out to the home of Henry Eldridge on the New Paltz and Highland road to extinguish a fire which is supposed to have been kindling from the day before when the chimney burned out and was thought to have been left safe. However, the flames burst out fresh again in the morning and did considerable damage before the boys could get the fire under control.

Edgar Maclaurin and Miss Ella Maclaurin spent Christmas Day with relatives in Ossining.

Senate In Nebraska Is Now Just A Room

LEGISLATIVE NURSERY
George W. Norris' "baby," the new one-house legislature, will take its first steps in Nebraska's skyscraper capitol January 5.

By ARTHUR WOLF

Lincoln, Neb. (AP)—American political science's new baby, Nebraska's one-house legislature, will take its first steps January 5 under the personal guidance of Dr. John P. Sennings and Godfather George W. Norris.

Forty-three members will meet in the $10,000,000 state capitol's 100-seat house chamber and use its 33-seat senate hall as a committee room. Nobody knows what to call them, because the law forgot a title and they have not christened themselves yet. Some want to be known as senators, others representatives, still others merely legislators.

One Nebraska newspaper thinks that by May the state will want to call them home. But Dr. Sennings, state university professor, declares the 43 "its" are "the cream of the crop—the higher type."

Non-Partisan Basis

Party monickers (22 are Democrats, 21 Republicans) mean little because they were elected on a non-partisan ticket.

Georgia, Vermont and Pennsylvania had legislatures a century ago that were one-house except for boards of censors empowered to sit with them and pass on their actions. Those experiments were abandoned.

Nebraska first considered the idea in 1913 but shoved it aside by a tie vote in the 1919-20 constitutional convention.

Revived By Norris

Senator Norris slapped life into the idea three years ago, and in 1934

all but 73 of 2,029 precincts voted for the necessary constitutional amendment. Political Pediatriclean Senning recommended there be 43 members, after the amendment provided for between 30 and 50. The former 100 representatives voted for 50. Dr. Senning drew maps districting the state for every permissible number, then showed house-senate conferees there would be the least "spread" between the city-sprinkled eastern third of the state and the lightly populated western two-thirds if 43 were chosen.

Arguments: Pro And Con

Proponents of the plan contend it will: Fix responsibility more directly on individuals.

Cut salary and incidental costs. Simplify procedure and abolish conference committees.

Attract better men.

Opponents deem it:

A step toward state dictatorship.

A blow to farmers' representation.

Un-American because non-partisan.

Destructive to the system of checks and balances.

Of the 43 "its" elected after the field of 283 aspirants had been cut to 85 in a primary, 32 have had previous state legislative experience.

Salaries Hiked

Lieutenant-Governor Walter H. Jurgensen, former Republican, now a Democrat, serving his third term, will preside. Pre-session talk indicates committee appointive powers will be vested not in him but in a committee on committees.

Jurgensen's salary will be hiked, from $1,600 to $3,488 for the two-year term. Unicameral members will get $875 a year for a two-year term and no extra pay for special sessions; bicameral legislators were paid $800 for a regular session once every two years and $10 a day up to 10 days for special sessions.

Two court attacks on the unicameral legislature's validity have been dismissed.

HEAD MAN
Nebraska's lieutenant-governor, Walter H. Jurgensen, will preside at the opening session of the one-house legislature.

HEISELMAN NAMED FOR CLISTER AND SULLIVAN

Albany, Dec. 29 (Special)—Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, of Kingston, has been appointed representative of Clister and Sullivan counties, by Mayor Charles Stanton, of Rochester, president of the New York State Conference of Mayors, in the Conference's latest drive to keep officials and citizens of the state informed regularly about the training schools for municipal officials operated by the Municipal Training Institute.

A group of 25 city and village mayors and one city manager have been designated by Mayor Stanton as regional representatives of the Institute, an educational institution chartered by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, and administered by officers of the New York State Conference of Mayors. The Institute is now operating all training schools for municipal officials which have been conducted by the Mayors' Conference since 1928.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bowling Green, O. — Probate Judge B. O. Blatline hung out a "business as usual" sign Saturday while other Wood county offices were closed.

Then he set a record for activity. He issued 46 marriage licenses to Michigan and Ohio couples, a new top for a single day.

Double Check

Tallahassee, Fla. — The Florida Supreme Court killed a "law" that never was passed.

The Senate and the House of Representatives had bills at the last session involving registration of bills of sale. Neither measure was approved by both houses.

Then a case came up brought by James Messer, Tallahassee automobile dealer. The court ruled the "law" was invalid.

Getaway

Kansas City—Sergeant Pat Conlon and Patrolman James Simpson answered a "vicious animal" call to the home of P. E. Coleman.

They found a skunk had crawled into a mattress roll in the cellar. Plugging up the ends, they carried the mattress to the back yard, emptied their pistols into it.

Simpson unplugged one end. Out darted the skunk unharmed—but fightin' mad.

Back at the station Lieut. Jake Rabinowitz greeted the crestfallen officers from a distance: "You stay away. This station smells bad enough now."

English Manner

New York—Miss Mabel Mather, a children's nurse, sought to mail a letter in a red box and then was accused of turning in a false fire alarm.

She pleaded guilty and received a suspended sentence when she explained to the court she passed most of her life in England and there, she said, the mail boxes are red.

Rat Hunt

McGrath, Minn. — The rat that for months figuratively got under his skin literally got next to it before John Garrity, Jr., caught the rodent.

Garrity vainly used traps and poison baits to catch the rat in his store. Then he flushed it while in the basement. It ran up his pants leg, burrowed under his shirt and lodged on his back. Friends came to Garrity's assistance, belaboring him with boards. One blow connected and the rat hunt was over.

The first submarine cable connected Ireland and Newfoundland.

The young of loggerhead turtles, even when hatched out of sight of the ocean, instinctively make for it as soon as they leave their shells.

Good Attendance
At Annual Sale of Tax Due Properties

The county treasurer's office was a busy place Monday morning preceding the annual sale of county properties in arrears for taxes. Many people came in at the last minute to pay taxes due on their properties before they were offered at public sale, which was set for 10 o'clock. In addition many remittances were received by mail just in time to mark off the properties from those listed to be sold.

There was a large attendance at the sale, about 150 interested parties being on hand as County Clerk Pratt, Deice and Deputy Gerard McEntee offered the properties for sale. In many cases mortgages were on hand to bid in properties on which they held the mortgage while many of the offerings were taken by people who bid them in as an investment.

The sale was held in the court room and the county treasurer and his assistants had a long day of it, the sale continuing without intermission until well on in the afternoon. As usual many of the properties on which no offers were received were bid in by the county.

Today

Broadway: "Polo Joe." Joe E. Brown goes back to the reason for his popularity in the comedy at the Broadway for Mr. Brown has always been effective in the role of a braggart and this show is no exception. Playing the role of a harmless and likable sap, he returns to the United States after years in the Orient to see that polo is the thing his set is playing. Afraid of horses he nevertheless explains that he is a polo player of marvelous ability in order to get the attention of a girl he falls in love with. As in his other plays, the villain makes him prove it and this part of the play is as funny as any thing seen on the screen in some time. Mr. Brown's cast includes Carol Hughes, Skeets Gallagher, Gordon Elliott, Fay Holden and George E. Stone. A Warner Brothers picture directed by William McGann.

Kingston: "Here Comes Carter" and "Hopalong Cassidy Returns." Ross Alexander climbs to stardom in the best of the Kingston Theatre attraction as a studio director who turns radio scandal commentator. As a man who dishes the dirt on screen and radio personalities, he naturally has many enemies and the show is therefore filled with much action. There are some acceptable songs, some moments of real comedy and the romantic touch is well supplied by Anne Nagel. Others in the cast are Glenda Farrell, Hobart Cavanaugh, Craig Reynolds and George E. Stone. "Hopalong Cassidy Returns" is electrifying drama of the old west with the wonderful Hopalong Cassidy returning to clean up a bunch of killers single handed. The younger generation will especially appreciate this show that stars William Boyd and features Jimmie Ellison.

Orpheum: "Miss Pacific Fleet" and "Fugitive Sheriff." The United States Navy parades before you in the first of the Orpheum features and serves as a background for another Warner Brothers screen version of the navy life. Essentially a comedy, it has to do with sailors and their activities on shore leave and Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins supply the laughs and the romancing. "Fugitive Sheriff" is the associate feature and it is one of the best westerns Ken Maynard has offered his public in some time.

Tomorrow
Kingston: "Come Closer Folks" and "Everything Is Thunder." How an old fashioned, slowly decaying department store in a small town is rejuvenated by a progressive and aggressive young salesman is interestingly brought to the Kingston screen in "Come Closer Folks," a study in modern merchandising with James Dunn starred and supported by Marian Marsh, Wynne Gibson, Herman Bing, Gene Lockhart and Gene Morgan. A Columbia picture directed by D. Ross Lederman. "Everything is Thunder" is heavy melodrama, filled with suspense and gripping action as it describes the activities of a lady of the streets who shelters a man in Berlin only to discover that he has escaped from a prison camp. This show bears the Gaumont-British name, which assures a mystifying and well directed performance. Americans in the cast are Constance Bennett and Douglas Montgomery and Oscar Homoloka of Vienna is also starred in the production.

Orpheum: "Celling Zero." With so many airplane disasters in the news today, this show is especially appropriate as it shows the perils and dangers confronting the commercial air pilot in his trek across the skyways with his human cargo. Fog, rain, visibility and storms are a few of his problems and he finds them all in this show, one of the most exciting airplane pictures on record. Taken from the stage play of the same name, the movie version far exceeds the legitimate play in visual effects and scope. Here is blood tingling melodrama, done with a gusto by James Cagney and Pat O'Brien.

Small Village Minister
"Onward Christian Soldiers" was written by Dr. Sabine Baring-Gould, minister of the small village church at Lew-Trenchard, England, says a writer in the Boston Herald. On Whitsunday in 1885 the boys and girls of his parish Bible school were preparing to attend a festival on the following day in a nearby village.

"They must have a stirring song to sing as they march tomorrow," the pastor decided. He spent most of the day searching for a satisfactory marching song and, when he found none to suit him, he sat up most of the night writing one of his own.

As those little English children, convention bound, sang "Onward, Christian Soldiers" for the first time the next day, Dr. Baring-Gould, little dreamed that he had written a song destined to live with the great hymns of the ages: "It was written in great haste, and I am afraid some of the rhymes are faulty. Certainly nothing has surprised me more than its popularity."

One Sunday in May, 1910, when the sixth international Sunday school convention was meeting in Washington, D. C., it was arranged that "Onward, Christian Soldiers" be sung simultaneously in Bible schools the world around. The hymn was translated into more than 100 tongues and dialects for the occasion. Today it is as popular as ever in churches and Sunday schools and at young people's religious gatherings.

The hymn tune with which modern Christians are most familiar was composed in 1871 by Sir Arthur Seymour Sullivan, the great English organist, who is known also as the composer of "The Lost Chord."

Rated With La Pickford

When Marie went abroad the natives cheered as loudly as for Mary Pickford, then the queen of screen drama. They mobbed her and fought for her autograph. And when she died she rated a couple of sticks of type.

Hollywood has no serial queen today to compare with those of the Marie Walcamp era. There were blonde curls streaming, she dared death week after week with the brawny little Eddie Polo.

One of those chapter plays I remember was "Labyrinth." Week after week Marie and Eddie escaped from peril only to plunge at the end of two reels—into another hair-raising hazard, there to remain suspended until next Saturday matinee. And life was black if you didn't have a nickel on the hallowed day.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Helen, last I heard, lived on a ranch in northern California. Pearl White was in Paris, retired from the profession.

Real Roland made a fortune in real estate, and is still active around Hollywood although not in pictures. Grace Cunard is married to a "western" actor and living in North Hollywood. She plays occasional bits in films.

But Hollywood still makes serials, and with profit. They are different now, with their thrills "directed" and purged of ingredients supposed to be over-stimulating to child patrons.

Jean Is Modern Queen

Buck Jones, Larry Crabbe, Ken Maynard, Tom Mix, Grant Withers, Don Briggs and other name players, more or less known, frequently participate in chapter plays.

And it may be there is a modern serial queen, after all. She would be Jean Rogers, 20-year-old blonde from Belmont, Mass., who used to be Eleanor Loregen. She has been leading lady in half a dozen serials.

Recently she went with other "Universal" players to appear in person at a downtown function. The others, who play in features, got a hand—but the cheers from the boys and girls were all for Jean Rogers.

"Children's Day"
At Sheriff's Office

Sheriff Molyneux and after being given some good advice, with particular reference to starting fires and taking pot shots at each other with air rifles, were allowed to go home. This is not the first time that Port Ewen residents have been disturbed by fires started in the woods nearby. Last week on two occasions fires were started in the woods between Slighsburg and Port Ewen, one of them attaining such proportions that it was necessary to call out the fire department.

The three boys brought in by Troopers Dunn and Wright were picked up at Holcove, where they were driving a 1927 Whippet coach. The boys gave their addresses as White Plains and their ages at 14 to 16 years. The troopers said that the boy who was driving the car at the time had no driver's license, but that the oldest boy, who claimed to be the owner of the car, had a junior operator's license.

Driven to Ousville. According to the story told Trooper Dunn the boys had driven to Ousville on Sunday, where they had left three others who had come up with them from White Plains. Heading as they supposed for home they got on the wrong road and wound up in the neighborhood of Downsville, Delaware county. From there they crossed over to Margaretville and were coming on to Kingston over Route 28 when they were stopped by the troopers Monday afternoon. They said that they had spent the night in their car. The boys were detained at the court house over night and message sent to their parents at White Plains. This morning a teletype message was received stating that the story told by the boys was true and that they had permission to drive to Ousville Sunday. They were allowed to continue their trip, headed for home.

Church Rates
Reduced Here

Fire Insurance rates in Kingston for the past year have been coming down. Following a reduction in rates on public buildings, schools, hospitals, garages and other structures of that class, announced over a year ago, the New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization recently issued a bulletin reducing the fire insurance rate on all non-fireproof churches 10 per cent, the rate change being effective as of November 1, 1936. The contents rate of non-fireproof churches remain unchanged. However, return premiums are not paid, the companies extending the expiration date of policies instead.

Prepare For Departure Mexico City, Dec. 29 (AP) — Two representatives of the Spanish Insurgent junta prepared today to leave for home, indignant at their deportation from Mexico. ## 5 Per Cent Too "Inert"

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 29 (AP)—A scientific forecast of future unemployment indicating that five per cent of those seeking work are too "inert" ever to hold a job was made to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today. The forecast came from an analysis of 3,240 unemployed at Johnson City, Tenn. All applied for work to the Tennessee Eastern Electric Company, their abilities were analyzed by the psychological clinic of the company's personnel department and reported by the director, D. R. Shearer.

Not Health Menace

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 29 (AP)—New York's Health Department reported today that the bovine disease known as mastitis is not a public health menace, and declared its control "should be considered primarily an economic problem of the dairy industry." Dr. Paul B. Brooks, deputy health commissioner, and Walter D. Tedman, of the department's staff, made the statement in a report prepared after a lengthy study of the disease.

Sir Edgeworth David, Welsh explorer, was the discoverer of the south magnetic pole.

Children's Yule Party at St. John's

On Monday evening, Holy Innocents' Day, the members of the church school of St. John's Church held their Christmas festival. After gathering in the church there was a short service especially for the school, with the Rev. Maurice Venno, pastor, giving a very interesting short talk on "The Christ Child and the First Christmas Tree," and all present joining in singing carols.

The service was followed immediately by the Christmas exercises given in the Parish House. Santa Claus being present, and a beautiful Christmas tree being gaily lighted for the happy occasion.

12 Crushed Bodies Taken From Plane

Stewardess Yvonne Trego, Alameda, Calif.

Department of Commerce inspectors studied the smashed instruments of the airliner.

It was the first time United Air Lines had lost a passenger in six years of operation on the San Francisco-Los Angeles route, officials said. During that time the company flew 7,600,000 miles.

Wreck Unexplained

The wreck of the liner, within a few miles of an emergency landing field at Saugus, was unexplained by officials. They said Pilot Blom sent out a radio message at 7:36 o'clock Sunday night asking for the radio beam to guide him through the rain into Union Air terminal here. It was the last message received.

Ranchers living in mountain valleys near the wreckage scene reported seeing a vivid blue flash of light at 7:36 p. m. Sunday night. The plane, however, did not burn.

Stormy conditions, prevailing at the time, extended over a wide western area today. A snowstorm blanketed Utah, halting search for a Western Air Express transport missing since December 15 with seven persons aboard.

High winds grounded three west-bound American Airlines planes last night at Tucson and the passengers continued by train.

At Calder, in north Idaho, ground searchers brought out the bodies of two pilots from the snow-covered mountainside where their Northwest Airlines plane struck December 18. Six others died in a Braniff Airways crash at Dallas, Tex., December 23.

Fuselage in Canyon

The fuselage of the United Airlines, twin-motored Boeing lay in a narrow canyon and the wings on top of a ridge, causing officials to believe that Blom suddenly lost his bearings and was attempting to turn back to the emergency field at Saugus.

Both pilots were married. McLean's widow is expecting their first child in March. Markwell and Hare also have widows.

Mrs. Newton, 22, was the wife of a San Francisco newspaper advertising executive. Miss Valance, 24, worked at a box factory.

The stewardess came to the coast five months ago from her home in Hastings, Mich.

Korn, 24, and Notak, 22, were employed in the Imperial Valley Grapefruit Growers' Association in El Centro.

Ford and his wife were married last year.

Most of the passengers were returning from holiday trips.

A Christmas wreath was found hanging over a plane door.

CHRISTMAS EXERCISES GIVEN AT ST. REMY

The church was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening, December 22, at the community Christmas exercises.

The Community Club donated and trimmed the large tree. An interesting and pleasing program was arranged under the direction of the day school teacher, Ralph Palmer, with Mrs. Harry Ellsworth at the piano. Santa came in carrying a large box from which was distributed gifts from the Sunday school, day school and community club, the latter presenting each child in the community with a box of candy, a useful gift, an apple and an orange. All in the audience joined the children in singing the old, yet ever new, Christmas carols.

At the close the pastor, the Rev. Philip Gomez, was given a handsome purse from the St. Remy congregation.

On Sunday afternoon the Intermediate C. E. Society very ably gave a Christmas pageant, "The Wise Men at the Well," with Miss Frances Blum as the leader. In the evening the pageant was repeated at the Reformed Church in Fort Town.

His Son Stolen

Dr. W. W. Mattson (above) performed major operation at a Tacoma, Wash., hospital while police sought the kidnaper of his 10-year-old son, Charles. The kidnaper left a note demanding $28,000. Dr. Mattson formerly played football at Washington and Pennsylvania Universities. (Associated Press Photo)

First Clues Fade

First clues faded rapidly. Capt. Harry Snider of the Washington state patrol cancelled without explanation a "pick up" order issued yesterday for a 1935 sedan whose driver was assertedly wanted for questioning.

He said simply the order was issued "by mistake."

Reports a second automobile, stolen half an hour before the abduction, might also have been used by the kidnaper, were not verified.

In Seattle, Irvin York, hamburger stand attendant, told officers a man answering the description of the Mattson kidnaper "to a T" entered the stand Monday morning, gulped a cup of coffee nervously as he read accounts of the kidnapping and hurried out when other customers entered. Police took fingerprints from the coffee cup and saucer.

At Washington, D. C., J. Edgar Hoover pledged "full cooperation" of the Department of Justice in solving the Tacoma disappearance.

Hoover declined to say whether he would come to Tacoma to take personal charge of the case. Other sources indicated he probably would.

A Tacoma report said an agent by the name of Connolly, who was here on the George Werberhauser kidnapping, was expected to take charge of the Mattson case soon.

That abduction in 1935, ending with release of the victim unharmed after payment of $200,000 was the last major one in the nation Sunday.

Colder Weather as Temperature Drops

Following the April-like weather and temperature of the past several days, the temperature began dropping last night and at 7 o'clock this morning the official city thermometer at the city hall recorded a low of 21 degrees above zero, the coldest point reached since the day before Christmas. While the springlike temperature has been unseasonable it has been appreciated by all but the children, who received sleds, skates and kites for Christmas, and who have been anxiously watching the heavens to see if colder weather and snow were not in sight. Old residents say they cannot recollect such a long period of mild weather at this time of year.

Accord, Dec. 23.—There will be no rural free delivery service on Friday, January 1. The post office will be open from 7:15 to 10 a. m.

Walls of Canadian Mint to Be Searched for Gold

Ottawa, Ont.—Royal Mint officials will stage a "gold hunt" after they move into their new quarters.

They believe that many thousands of dollars' worth of gold dust have been carried off by smoke and gasses from the huge smelting furnaces and deposited on the walls and floors of the old quarters.

The vacated rooms will be cleaned thoroughly, the dust sifted and the tiny particles of gold reclaimed.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Dec. 29 (AP).—Selected stocks received support in today's market and gains of fractions to around a point were posted for the favorites.

On the other hand, many of the leaders churned listlessly and small losses were plentiful near the final hour. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

A "sit-down" strike at the Cleveland plant of General Motors subsidiary, Fisher Body Co., was followed by a minor decline in the former's shares. Chrysler, however, was a bit better than even.

Some of the oils again edged forward. Among these were Standard of N. J., California and Indiana, Texas Corp., and Seaboard.

Others showing an upward tilt most of the session included Douglas Aircraft, North American Aviation, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Deere, International Harvester, American Can, Continental Can, Johns-Manville, Canada Dry, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Armour & Co., General Foods and Westinghouse Airbrake.

At a standstill or lower the greater part of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Macy, Auburn, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, du Pont, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Union Pacific.

This position was made known in connection with the commission's approval of Greyhound Corporation's $1,350,000 distribution in 5 1/2 per cent preferred stock as an extra dividend on its common. At the same time it was learned that Secretary Morgenthau will oppose proposed revisions of the surtax until March 15 income tax returns are available.

Uptown Stores Close At 9 P. M. Saturday

Beginning next Saturday night, the stores uptown will close at 9 o'clock, instead of 9:30. This was decided today at a meeting of the Uptown Business Men's Association, and the police will continue until daylight saving goes into effect again next year.

Merchants Confer With Mayor About Waste Collections

Following the recent action taken by the board of public works that after the first of the year no "trade waste" would be collected by the city in the business sections, a conference was held with about 25 of the uptown business men with Mayor C. J. Heiselman and Superintendent David Conway in Flanagan's clothing store on Wall street. Several suggestions were offered and at the close of the conference the mayor said he would take the matter up with the board at its next meeting.

One of the suggestions advanced, and which the mayor favored, was that the city collect at least two containers filled with "trade waste" in front of each business house, and that the merchants place the waste out on the sidewalks so that it could be collected at 9 o'clock in the morning instead of 7 o'clock as at present.

Considerable discussion was given to the fact that waste was placed out on the curb in the business sections at night and that during the night many went searching through the rubbish and scattering it about the street and sidewalks. It was decided to ask the police department to cooperate in stopping this practice. Another thing favored was that when a merchant had the sidewalk swept in front of his place that instead of sweeping the rubbish and waste into the street that it be gathered up and placed in containers. This would assist in keeping the streets clean.

It was brought out in the discussion that the action taken by the board was due to the fact that in some business places considerable waste was placed out on the curb. Recently from in front of one business house three full truck loads had to be removed by the street department.

The entire conference was harmonious and several of the suggestions made will be taken up at the next board meeting for favorable action.

German Freighter Released Today

at all the cargo and the passengers must be freed.

Beside the crew and Spaniard whom the Dasques have accused of destroying his papers, a woman of German nationality previously had been reported aboard the Palos.

The Koenigsberg reached Bilbao following the expiration of a time limit set by the German government on release of the Palos, a 997-ton ship.

Contradicting the Dasques, the Germans contended the Palos had carried no war materials however, and that seizure was an "act of war."

Nevertheless, today's Basque radio announcement described that part of the cargo which was retained as "war material."

Reports from Bilbao indicated the Dasques had received the Koenigsberg commander, who came ashore, with the usual courtesies. No other German warship was sighted in the harbor, although Berlin reports have indicated the Reich intended to use torpedo boats hereafter to convey German shipping bound for Fascist ports, such as San Sebastian, on the bay.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN OF ROCHESTER REMEMBER NEEDY

The charity party, which was held in the O. O. F. Hall, Accord, under the auspices of the Women's Republican Club of the town of Rochester, was well attended. The evening was spent in playing cards and dominoes and in dancing.

Many articles of clothing were brought in, as well as books, candles, fruit, vegetables, toys, canned fruit and jellies. A number of people who were unable to attend sent in their contributions, thus making it a real community party.

Twelve nice Christmas boxes were made up and sent to the needy in the town.

WO ATKINS GIVEN 6 MONTHS EACH FOR PETIT LARCENY

Chester and Louis Atkins of Ohioville, arrested at Brewster by Troopers Klein and Elliott on petit larceny charges, were each sentenced to six months in the Ulster county jail when arraigned before Justice William B. Carr Monday.

The youths are charged with having stolen the motor from a car at Ardona.

The airplane bombings of Madrid ought to make it perfectly clear, it is now, that kind of warfare is an ugly, inhuman and unrelieved drawback to absolute savagery.

Retailers' Sales In '36 Are Best In 6 Years

By Smith Reavis
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York (AP)—Farmers, workers and coupon clippers with the expanding revenues of the industrial upturn in their pockets, hoisted the 1936 volume of retail trade to more than $36,000,000,000, the best level since 1930.

This chart, based partly on estimates by the department of commerce, gives a rough idea of where your retail dollar went in 1936.

Rising employment, augmented farm income and fatter wages for city workers played their part in the buying movement. The soldiers' bonus and increased dividends paid out by hundreds of industrial corporations were credited with a "pump priming" share.

South Sets The Pace

The south, with its expanded industry and 12-cent cotton, led in percentage of increased purchasing. Following closely came the middle west, where farm income was some 8 per cent higher than last year. The Pacific Coast, New England and, finally, the middle Atlantic states, ranked next in that order.

The 1936 total of $36,680,000,000, estimated by the National Retail Drygoods Association in conjunction with other research organizations, represents a 12 per cent increase over last year's aggregate and is 15 per cent under 1930 and 26 per cent under 1929. In 1929, with prices at a substantially higher level than in 1936, retail business reached a peak of $49,114,000,000.

Buyers in 1936 favored automobiles, apparel and furniture, sales for those articles running between 20 and 25 per cent better than last year. Mail order dollar volume was up about 23 per cent. Department store purchases were some 11 per cent higher.

Luxuries Sell Better

Luxury articles—furs, jewelry and the more expensive novelties—had a far wider public than in any of the post-depression years. In the fact of considerably higher prices, sales of fur coats and trimmings, Dun & Bradstreet estimated, jumped more than 30 per cent over last year. Jewelry distribution rose sharply.

Pre-Christmas buying was brisk and well above last year's mark, with luxury and higher priced articles getting more attention.

Analysts pointed out that the flood of year-end corporation dividends became available only during the last month or so and expressed the opinion that much of the money so acquired would be spent in January and February.

MYSTERY SAFE WILL BE OPENED IN 1976

Catacombs of U. S. Capitol Hold Ancient Riddle.

Washington, D. C.—Walk with the writer through the labyrinth of crypts and corridors under the capitol of this nation and stumble on a mystery generations old, a riddle which will not be solved until forty more years have passed.

The pale gleam from an occasional electric bulb makes eerie shadows in this legislative catacomb. The granite walls are black with the dust of the ages. They feel clammy to our hands.

We poke our heads into airless chambers, like dungeons now, but built for a purpose—long forgotten—when the country was young. We wander through corridors which turn and weave and double back upon themselves, far underground. We tread softly because, well, we're a little scared.

We talk in whispers as we approach the empty sepulchre which was built to keep forever the body of George Washington. The early lawmakers changed their minds. Washington's body rests at Mount Vernon.

Near this empty grave, directly beneath the great rotunda, is a wooden door, which creaks on its hinges as we push it open. Behind it, in a rock-lined room, is an ancient iron safe, waist-high, covered with dust a quarter of an inch thick. We try to open it, but its heavy door is locked tight.

What's in this strongbox? We rush upstairs with news of our discovery to the office of Charles E. Fairman, elderly curator of the capitol's art. He, too, has been wondering about that safe thinking about it for more years than he likes to remember.

It was installed in 1876, with a strict injunction that it not be opened until 100 years later. The key long since has been lost. With it into the limbo of forgotten things has gone the story of the safe.

Nobody knows the secret of the safe. Nobody will know until our children—grown to men by then—assemble January 1, 1976, to witness a locksmith, perhaps yet to be born, discover the truth.

Girl, 19, in Boy's Attire, Prefers Plow to Kitchen

Kansas City, Mo.—Well-groomed in boy's clothing, Eleanor Vass, nineteen-year-old farm girl, sat in the police matron's quarters here recently, and said she would rather run a plow than a vacuum cleaner.

Eleanor, who was reared on a farm near Vermillion, Ohio, said she had been wearing male clothing for ten years, and preferred male occupations to housework. She was questioned about her activities, while police attempted to communicate with her family.

The girl was turned over to police after she entered a hospital for treatment of an infected hand. She appeared so natural in boy's clothing that physicians failed to recognize her as a girl. She admitted her name was Eleanor and not "Tommy" when attendants assigned her to the men's ward. Police were notified.

"Ever since I was little I have done hard work on my father's farm," Eleanor explained. "I have five brothers and three sisters, and I helped my father and brothers in the fields, while my sisters helped with the housework."

Two-Yard Shirt Tails Evade Singapore Duty

Singapore.—How long should the tail of a shirt be? That is worrying customs authorities here. The shirts in a shipment on arrival here were found to have tails two yards long.

After some discussion the shirts were allowed to enter the colony, but an official inquiry is to be made into the maximum reasonable length of a shirt tail.

Japanese exporters have been making double-size garments to evade the quota applied to textile imports, according to Singapore merchants. After the garments are landed they are taken to pieces and sold by the yard.

Hawaiians Are Proud

Honolulu.—Hawaiians are proud of the fact that all progress does not necessarily have to follow the flag. They installed their electric light and power system in monarchical times, 50 years ago, or 15 years before Hawaii became a part of the United States.

Yen for Curls Gets Student Into Jail

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Allan Lamprecht, high school student, snipped the curls from nearly a score of girls' heads before police caught him.

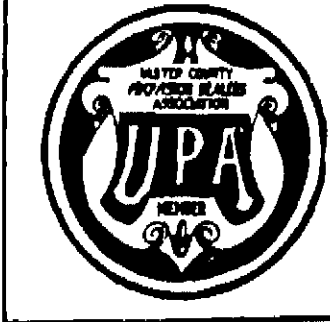

Allen, who explained he had suffered a nerve breakdown recently, developed a yen for curls. He would attract the girls to his automobile with the offer of candy, police charged, clip their tresses and drive away.

A search of cars resulted in discovery of the scissors and a large collection of curls in Lamprecht's automobile. He was booked on four charges of third degree assault.

Four hundred persons are expected to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, which will be held in New York City, January 1, 1937.

Annual Shriners Ball, January 8

The big entertainment and ball which the Shriners will hold in the Municipal Auditorium on Friday evening, January 8, will be entirely to the benefit of the Industrial Home which is one of the most worthwhile charities within Ulster county.

Over 60 years have come and gone since the organization of the Industrial Home on December 26, 1875.

In March, 1877, a building was rented and the home began the work of caring for homeless children. The building no longer exists. It stood on Maiden Lane, opposite Academy Green.

From this building the home was transferred to a house on Green street. After a few years the home purchased a house on Broadway between Brewster and Staples street, and finally the present home, 7 East Chester street, was opened in September, 1903.

Later in 1906 the Quarantine Cottage was purchased and on October 26, 1921, the Hospital was acquired.

The three buildings are located on East Chester street, Highland and Clifton avenues, and are open for inspection every day except Sunday.

In these 60 years many children have passed through the home and gone out into the world and have brought honor to the home and themselves.

This institution is, and always has been, supported by the contributions of the good people of this city and county.

Many years ago the Kingston Shriners happily conceived the idea of holding a ball in the old armory on Broadway for the benefit of the Home. It proved such a big success that each year thereafter they have held an affair for its benefit. The Shriners turn over immediately to the Industrial Home every penny raised by these affairs, and are working hard this year to raise as large an amount as possible. They are very happy at the manner with which the public is responding to their appeal.
